

I totally support the elimination of the Morse Code testing requirement. I believe that the Code portions of the bands should be kept in place for those that wish to use them. In my opinion, it will be a great benefit for current and future hams and an enhancement to the hobby. I believe that it will encourage many more persons to join the hobby; this will allow more usage of the bands and offer the opportunity for more public service. Several countries have already acted to remove the Code test requirement; I believe that allowing U.S. licensees access to the HF bands without code testing is good for everyone concerned.
